AGAIN UNDER THE KNIFE.

A NEW CHANNEL CUT FOR THE PUS FROM THE PRESIDENT'S WOUND.

The Operation Made Necessary by the Healing of the Original Opening. The Patient Dearing the Operation Well and Speedily Recovering from its Effects. The After-noon Fever Sending the Pulse Up to 110. WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 .- This morning the efficial builetin from the White House said that the President had passed a comfortable night and slept well without anodyne; that the rise of emperature of yesterday afternoon had subided and had not come back at any time during the night, and that the patient was appearing better than resterday morning. Nothing was said about the local action of the wound, because at that very moment the surgeons were preparing to perform an operation upon it. At track of the bullet, and established a third vent for the discharge of the pus. The President was stronger than when a similar incision was made two weeks ago, and the physicians therefore did not regard it imprudent to give him ether, nor apparently was his treatment followed by any very ill result, while it enabled him to bear the pain of the operation with firmness. The necessity for the operation became apparent to the surgeons yesterday, when they found that a drainage tube of the size hitherto used could no longer be passed along the track of the ball between the ribs. The process of granulation at that point had gone on so far as to partially close the orifice, and the ribs prevented the pushing aside of the fiesh which was healing between them enough so that the tube could be introduced. The result of this state of things was that bus formed in the deeper parts of the wound rather faster than it could escape through the half-obstructed opening between the ribs, and its gradual accumulation began to cause disturbance. It was, therefore, decided to make a new opening into the track of the ball below the last rib, so that the ribs should no longer pre-

than has been reached any time since the critical saturitary, a forthight ago. They do not show any variation in tendency from that noticed last night, and for three nights previous—a tendency which, in the language of Secretary Blaine to Minister Lowell, indicated another obstruction to the flow of pus. It must be remembered that Mondays have been the most unfavorable days for fever ever since the linjury, and it is to be hoped that as we get intriher into the week these flaures will show a very material reduction.

Mrs. Dr. Edson went home at noon to-day to spend an hour with her family. She has not been home to remain over night for some time, as the President does not like to have her leave his bedside. He said to her the other day that he would like to have her remain in attendance all the time; but sho should take care of herself and catch what sleop she could. Mrs. Edson says that for the past four or five days the President did not appear to be in such good spirits as usual, but that lags night and this morning before the operation was performed he expressed himself as feeling better than at any time since he had been shot, and seemed to be in a very cheerful mood in itself. She says that the operation was not performed because they flowered what they thought was a new pus cavity forming, which, unless a new incision was made now, might lead to faint results. The President, after he had recovered from the effect of the ether, seemed to be pretty well, but of course feit somewhat weaker than before the operation. The dectors, she said, were much gradited at the resule to fair from pus cavities in the future, and express no fears of further serious ecapitations.

At 11 o'clock Dr. Blies said that the President was sleeping well. His puise was apparently $9 or 100, full and soft. No fever was manifest, and his general condition was very favorable. The report published in a Prinadelphia nowspaper that the wound had been protest and the builet located in the muscles of the back is denied on authority of the this morning's surgical operation until after the evening examination. He suffered more or less throughout the afternion from nussea, caused by the ether; he was rather weaker than caused by the ether; he was rather weaker than yestering, and was not able to take the quant quantity of nonrishment. Milk with line water was given him as soon as his stormed would bear it after the direct effects of the ether had passed away, and later in the day he had meat juice and beef extract, but he was allowed no solutiond. His pulse, probably as a result of the gastre disturbance, was rather high during the afternson, and at 15 went to 110, but his temperature did not rise correspondingly until about the time of the evening examination, when it reached 1010. The febrile rise shown by this temperature was more pronounced than usual, the physicians, were issued from the Executive Manision to-day:

Secretary Blaine sent the following telegram

WHAT DR. HAMILTON SAYS.

Why it was Necessary to Make Another In-claion, and the Effect it will Probably Have. Dr. Frank H. Hamilton returned from Washington at 10 o'clock last night. He said. as he dropped into his easy chair and stroked about 9 o'clock Dr. Agnew cut his way into the welcome her master: "Well, sir, I suppose you want to know the necessity of to-day's operation? It was this: For two or three days we had observed that there was a rise of temperature in the afternoon, and while we thought it was probably due to the increased heat of the weather, we didn't feel assured that this was the fact. We had known for several days that the eavity behind the broken rib was rather increasing in size. This we ascertained by first emptying the sac of pus, then filling it with a disinfecting fluid until it overflowed, and then emptying the sac and measuring the quantity with a graduated glass. Each day we found that the eavity would hold a little more of the fluid. We found also that when the dramage tube was in, and the fluid was conveyed through it into the track of the wound, it would not escape along the outer walls of the tube showing that the tube flied the canal completely and served somewhat as an obstruction. It was also noticed that a long flexible catheter, constructed by Mr. Stollman, with a permanent curve at its lower end, which we had been able to pass down along the back of the wound six or seven inches, was no longer admitted. It became apparent, therefore, that if the rise of temperature on the, preceding days was due only to the increased heat of the weather, newtrheless the time was approaching when there would be serious obstruction to the outflow of the pus, unless some means of prevention were adopted. The conclusion was that if the President was in a favorable condition the following morning an opening should be made below the twelfth rib, where it would be less likely horeafter to become obstructed. Finding this morning that he had passed a very comfortable night, and that he was in good condition to endure such an operation, it was made, the President first being etherized."

"What was the result?"

"The operation has no doubt inflicted some temporary injury upon the patient, and it is quite probable that for a few days to come the iedrile movements will be a little increased. But for this we shall think there will be an adequate compensation if we secure hereafter a free and uninterrupted discharge of pus. I think now we shall be abl temperature in the afternoon, and while we thought it was probably due to the increased advertisement described Bashaw, Jr., as 7 years old, 15% hands high, and "a perfect horse, free from fault and blemish." He had cost the owner's husband $1,250 a year ago. He was a horse of great endurance, and his fastest record was "only 2:27%, driven by Mr. Simpson at Lexington, Ky," He had trotted a mile in 2:25 in private on several occasions. Any one desiring to purchase might call at owner's private stable, in rear of private residence, 119 West Forty-seventh street, near Sixth avenue. Mr. James Wilson, merchant, of 18 Exchange place, read the advertisement at his residence, 12 West Forty-ninth street. He thought the horse would suit him, and, on the morning of Aug. 1. called at the stable. A weil-dressed young man received him, and represented that the horse had been a favorite of his father, who had died a few weeks previously, and his mother could not bear to retain the animal, since it reminded her of her affliction. The young man represented himself as Edward Knight, At Mr. Wilson's request the horse was brought forward. It was a fair-looking beast, and seemed to have good points.

"Now." Mr. Wilson said, after carefully examining the animal, "I would like to see him tret. If he shows up well in the trial I will buy him."

"There is no need of a trial," Knight answered. "I will give you a guarantee that the horse is everything that I have represented, You run no risk, for I am amply responsible, My mother owns the property on which this house and stable are located, and I have her power of attornoy."

Knight made other representations to Mr. Wilson, who finally agreed to purchase the horse on the following guarantee, drawn up and signed by Knight.

Influx of Colored Readjusters-The Chance Good for a Row and a Split. LYNCHBURG, Va., Aug. 8 .- Already the del-

They have got the Readjuster fever, and might just as well have been delegates to Mahone's Convention out the Republican party on Wednesday by carrying the Convention for the Malione ticket, is yet a matter of doubt. A numerial majority will be given for coalition beyond question, but the men of honor are against it. Therefore these black men fear that they will be tricked in some way, and before they know it will find that Wickham, Jorgensen, and Dezendorf have carried their Convention and put a ticket in the field. Consequently these Readjusters will watch every preliminary move with keen eye and with a suspicion that will be likely to cause delay, if not more serious trouble. Every one anticipates a great deai of hot blood before the Convention is over, and the chances are very good for a split. Many contesting delegations are and will be here—a number large enough, in fact, to make a very respectable convention in size. These contestants are ready to make a row if they are not admitted. Gen. Wickham will be here to-morrow.

He was given employment in black men are going to be strong enough to blot the office of Mr. Walcott about two years ago and grew to be a trusted and confidential clerk. rying the Convention for the Mahone | He disappeared on Friday, and on Saturday the firm discovered that it had been robbed of $10,000 in bonds and stocks, and that young Wheelock had negotiated two $5,000 checks intrusted to him by the firm for purposes of its business, and had turned the proceeds to his own account. Young Wheelock is the son of Moses A. Wheelock, who for twenty-five years was Vice-President and Chairman of the Stock Exchange. Being defeated for reclection as chair-man in May, 1878, and having no other income than that derived from his position, the elder Wheelock was obliged to sell his seat in the Exchange. He became despondent, and on Sunday morning. June 23, 1878, shot himself through the temple at his house in this city. His wife and son had just come in from church, and had gone up stairs, leaving him in the parlor. Coming down stairs, live minutes later. At D. Wheelock found his father dead in a chair. It was with reluctance that Mr. Frank F. Dickinson of the firm of J. C. Wolcott & Co., made public yesterday the story of young Wheelock's disappearance. On Friday last, he said, he gave Wheelock two cheeks for $5,000 tench, on the Continental National Bank, drawn to Wheelock's order. They were intended to be used in the course of the firm's business. Wheelock remained at the office when Mr. Dickinson went home on Friday. He did not appear as usual on Saturday morning, and a noto-pane from him saying that he was too ill to come down town. Meantime, upon opening the safe, Mr. Dickinson had discovered the loss of about $40,000 worth of securities. As Wheelock did not come down by noon, a messenger was sent to his boarding house at Madison avenue and Forty-third street. It was said there that he had not been in his room since the day before. A further examination of the safe was then made. A list of the missing stocks and bonds was male out and telegraphed to bankers and brokers to prevent any negotiation of them. The police also were notified. The list of the securities was as follows:

The fire second consolidated bonds, $1,000 sech, numbered 2012, 6,747, 5,413, 18,116, 10,030, 10,341, 15,430, 15,129, 19,702, 11,753, and 1,870, belong to J. C. Inspector Dyrnes at once set detectives to work upon the case, It was day morning, June 23, 1878, shot himself through the temple at his house in this city.

Hars: Its shares New York, Ontario and Western stock, the certificate for which, No. 14,719, is owned by S. P. Johnson & Co.

Inspector Byrnes at once set detectives to work upon the case, It was learned that Wheeleck had taken one of the two checks which he received from Mr. Dickinson to Brown Brothers, in Wall street, and had purchased a letter of credit addressed to the banking nouse of Brown Brothers in London. He bought a similar letter of Drexet, Morgan & Co. with the other $5,000 check. From that time on Friday there is no distinct trace of Wheeleck's movements. When the discovery of the loss of the firm and of his disappearance had been made, the Saturday European steamers had already sailed. The passenger lists were examined by the police, and it is believed by them that Wheeleck sailed on the Bremen steamer Neckar.

Mr. Dickinson desired to state that the firm gave prompt information of the loss of the securities to warn brokers and bankers from dealing in them, and further, that the house had not been in the least embarrassed by the loss. The letters of credit are negotiable upon sight in any country, and therefore need not be presented in London for payment. As the checks were made payable to Whoeleck's order for convenience in the transaction of the business for which they were intended, he is not liable to extradition upon a charge of forgery in case he has saided for Europe. The extradition receptors the house at present. He instinated that Wheeleck's relations with women had led him into extravagant habits, and that it was not unlikely that his disappearance might be due in some way to them.
